Enjoy learning about our environment!

LANDSCOPE is a quarterly magazine, published by the Department of Conservation and Land Management. It carries articles on a wide range of subjects, all of them interesting and exciting insights into the natural world of Western Australia.

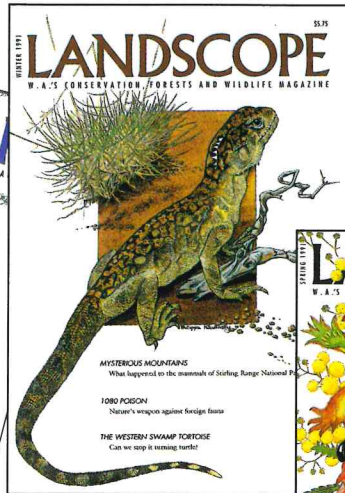

Articles are written by researchers, scientists and CALM staff using a simple, free-flowing style that makes reading easy.

If you don't already subscribe to LANDSCOPE, here are just some of the articles you have missed in the last four issues:

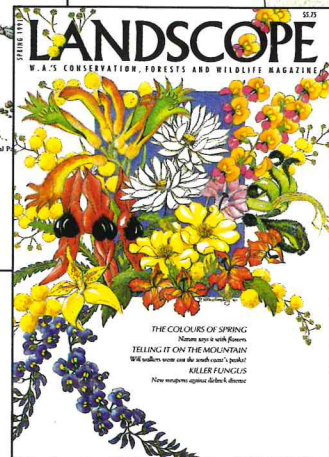

AUTUMN 1991

D'Entrecasteaux National Park, Abrolhos seabirds and sealife, invertebrates, Fitzgerald River, Wanjarri Nature Reserve, Perth wildlife, Dampier Archipelago.

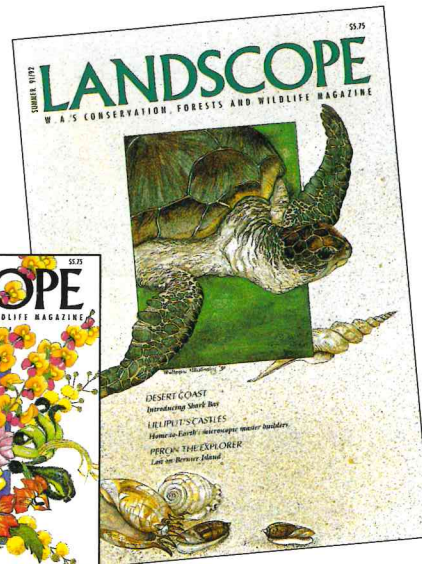

WINTER 1991

The Kimberley - missing mammals, 1080 toxins, mulga and fire, national parks protect the ecosystem, south west jarrah, the tortoise, plants that mimic their prey, killer flora, lizards.

SPRING 1991

Wildflowers, Pilbara's remote gorges, WA Museum fauna collection, wildflower fungi, WA's mountains, weed invaders, Karroun Hill nature reserve, mapping plants.

SUMMER 1991/92

Shark Bay - dugongs, dolphins, hidden flora, Péron the Explorer, Lilliput's Castles, seagrasses, birds of the Bay.

All these articles include breathtaking colour photos of the flora and fauna found in our vast, exciting state.

There are segments on endangered species, short editorials about plants and animals, information on where to visit to see our vast ecosystem for yourself - 54 pages packed full of fascinating insights into the world around us.

When you subscribe to LANDSCOPE, you save $3.00 off the published cover price of your four issues. More importantly, you don't miss a single issue of this fascinating publication.

Subscription is just $20 a year (only $5 a copy !)

Subscribe today to ensure:

- ❖ Hours of great reading
- ❖ Inspiration for day trips and holidays throughout the State
- ❖ Resource material for school projects
- ❖ Invaluable information on preserving our flora and fauna for future generations
