BRIEFING NOTES

CLAUSE 6

In July 1978 the then Department of Fisheries and Wildlife recommended that an area of vacant Crown land comprising approximately 10,700 hectares centred on Dragon Tree Soak be declared as a Class "A" Reserve for "Conservation of Flora and Fauna".

The soak is a permanent fresh-water swamp situated in the central region of the Great Sandy Desert and a focus for wildlife in the area. The intent is to conserve an unique and ecologically important microcosm dependent on one of the few sites with permanent fresh water available in this desert.

In March 1979 Jarmura Location 1, containing an area of 14,182 hectares, was proclaimed as a Class "A" "Conservation of Flora and Fauna" Reserve (Number 35918). Vesting was in favour of the then Western Australian Wildlife Authority. However due to the area to the north of the soak being subject to a Petroleum Exploration Permit this area, (now described as Jarmura Location 2), was excluded from the original proclamation/reservation.

The result of this action was that the soak itself was undesirably close to the northern boundary of Reserve 35918.

The Department of Minerals and Energy now has no objection to Jarmura Location 2, as depicted on Reserve Diagram No. 518, being included into Class "A" Reserve 35918. The Shire of Broome also supports this action. The Department of Conservation and Land Management (CALM) staff have contacted Aboriginal groups in the area and the Aboriginal Affairs Planning Authority has cleared the way for reservation pursuant to the Land (Titles and Traditional Usage Act 1993).

In view of the "A" Classification over Reserve No. 35918, Reserves Bill action is necessary to include Jarmura Location 2 (containing an area of 3547 hectares) into the reserve.
