We ask that you wear the badge proudly to spread the word about the environment and conservation and how individuals can assist by volunteering.

The badge features species Hypocalymma punecium subsp. Cadoux. It is a priority one species restricted to a small area in the central Wheatbelt. It produces striking, large dark pink flowers in late spring and grows to a meter high. Belonging to the Myrtaceae family, the genus Hypocalymma consists of roughly 30 species, all of which are endemic to south-west Western Australia. Several volunteer programs help to monitor these and other threatened species across WA.
