Western Australia's

Threatened flora

- A Book of Rare Quality

Western Australia is world renowned for its spectacular wildflower displays and the richness of its flora.

Unfortunately, the high level of diversity is matched with a high risk of extinction.

Western Australia's Threatened Flora is a comprehensive guide to the 350 species and subspecies classified as rare (threatened) in this State.

The plants are listed in regions and each appears with a colour photograph (where one is available) and a description covering distinctive features, flowering time, distribution and habitat, and current status.

Western Australia's Threatened Flora is more than a catalogue of potential disaster. It is a rallying call to all who wish to play a part in preserving our irreplaceable floral heritage.

The 220-page book looks at the key threats to Western Australian flora, and the steps being taken to address or minimise them. It also looks at the many ways community groups, private landowners and volunteers are helping in the fight to prevent further extinctions and aid recovery.

Priced at only $29.95, it is a book that belongs in the libraries of all who love Western Australia and its spectacular wildlife.
