Spring 2014

Welcome to the Department of Parks and Wildlife's WA Naturally publications newsletter.

Make the most of the glorious spring weather as the bush comes alive with a beautiful display of colourful wildflowers from the State's mid-west to the biodiversity-rich south-west. WA Naturally has a wonderful range of informative Bush Books about the most common wildflowers likely to be seen.

Snakes are becoming more active this time of year, especially as they warm up in the early sunlight. A useful snake identification guide is the Snakes of Western Australia Bush Book.

If you are lucky enough to be heading south during spring The Best of the South West is a must-have companion. This 80-page book will help you plan your trip and ensure you take-in some of the best natural places this stunning area has to offer.

Or simply soak up the sun, listen to the wonderful chorus of the birds and relax in your own special place whilst reading the latest issue of LANDSCOPE magazine.

Whatever you do this spring we hope you find something in our WA Naturally range to inspire you.

P.S. Don't forget that the Western Australia 2015 Calendar is available ... if you're looking for a quality, inexpensive Christmas gift, the calendar is perfect!

We hope you enjoy this issue of our newsletter and would love to hear your feedback about LANDSCOPE or any of our products. Please contact us at customer.service@dpaw.wa.gov.au.
