MEDIA STATEMENT

MINISTER FOR THE ENVIRONMENT

A 60 hectare block of land north east of Watheroo has gained the State's highest conservation status as part of the recovery plan to protect the rare rose mallee.

Environment Minister Peter Foss today said the land, which had been transferred to the Government last February, was now declared an A class nature reserve vested in the National Parks and Nature Conservation Authority.

The rose mallee (Eucalyptus rhodantha) is known from only 11 populations near Watheroo and Three Springs, which together comprise about 700 plants.

The Watheroo site was previously part of a farm and was bought for the Government by Western Minerals NL in exchange for the excision of land from the Watheroo National Park for bentonite clay mining. It supports the biggest pure stands of rose mallee with more than ^{half} of the total known plants.

Mr Foss said the Department of Conservation and Land Management earlier this year built a rabbit-proof fence around the 5 km perimeter of the land as part of the recovery plan.

The Department was undertaking weed control over the area and had reintroduced rose mallee seedlings and other local plant species to help restore the ecological balance of the area.

Rose mallee grows to 4 metres high, has smooth grey-brown bark, white-grey branches and thick blue leaves. It produces stunning red flowers between June and August.

The recovery program is being funded by CALM and the Australian Nature Conservation Agency.
