At Home in the Trees

Koalas naturally live in the tall forests and woodlands of the east coast of Australia.

Koalas are listed as "near threatened". Forest clearing, disease and fires have divided and reduced koala populations in the wild.

The image shows a person's hands, likely engaged in a craft or agricultural activity. The hands are positioned in a way that suggests they are working with a material, possibly a piece of fabric or a plant. The background is slightly blurred, focusing attention on the hands and the task at hand.
